

Learning objectives

- 1 I know that not everything online is trustworthy
- 2 I can recognise some of the differences between fact and opinion
- 3 I can make decisions about what I trust online using clues

What is trust?

Trust is...

You can rely on someone / something.

Trust is...

You believe that someone or something is telling you the truth.

Where do you go to look at online content?

Can we trust everything we see online?

5 minutes

Task

Sort all the things you can see online into the following table based on whether you think they are trustworthy.

Trust	Can't trust	Not sure

Images Comments Blogs Facts
Links Hashtags News Quizzes
Websites Videos Maps
Search engines

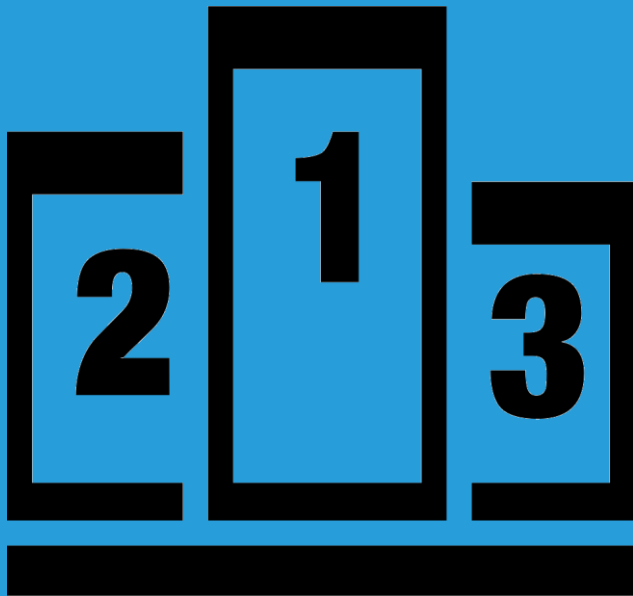

Challenge - can you think of any of your own?

How trustworthy is it?

10 minutes

Task – Good game?

You will need to rank the next 5 sources of information and decide which is the most trustworthy.

- Which source gives the best and most accurate account of the game?

The new Roblox for Xbox One is rubbish!!!!!!

I tried the new roblox on Xbone today and it's really bad. It hardly lets you do anything and some of the controls you would usually use don't work.

I think the graphics didn't look the same either.

Don't waste your time on this one!!

Why are people playing this game? It's rubbish! If you are a true Roblox fan you should be on the PC version only!

What are we looking out for?

10 minutes

How do I find reliable information online?

Task – What are we looking out for?

Write a checklist of things you would look out for when judging if something online is trustworthy.

1 ...

2 ...

3 ...

How trustworthy is it?

10 minutes

I want to download and watch Toy Story!
Which link shall I click on?

Task – Searching for the truth

Look at the following search results for downloading Toy Story and decide which link to click on. Think about;

- Which one will let you download the film?
- Will it cost any money?
- Are there any websites which you wouldn't trust?
- How have the websites been ordered?

What are we looking out for?

Is there anything we can add to our checklist to make sure we click on the most reliable search result?

How can we check?

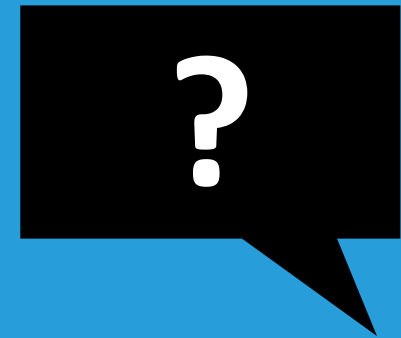

I've found something online which I think is reliable but how do I check?

Check it on at least three different websites

Check in a book

Talk to someone about what you found

? Time to reflect

Does this mean we can't trust anything online now?
